Qualifications

Please describe your relevant analytical skills.

Acquired my analytical skills through both education and job experience. I have a BS in Mathematics Education with a minor in Physics and Physical Education. In teaching math and science one needs to teach analytical skills, particularly in business environment whereby the math and science are applied to real-time business problems.

After teaching for 5 years at the high school level, I had a 29 year career at IBM in Human Resources Management, as a trainer, Manager, Director and Product Education Executive. All these positions demanded an increasing level of analytical skills. I spent 15 years after retiring from IBM with University of Texas, working with large and small school systems in assisting them to systemically raise math and science student achievement which involved the complexity of working with various people, meeting state standards and requirements and analyzing how each unique schools system can make improvements.

I have been an Adjunct Professor at Texas State University for over 28 years in the School of Business teaching a wide range of courses, with a key focus of developing critical analysis skills in students.

Please describe your ability to be impartial.

Politically I consider my self as a moderate, or middle of the road. I focus on the issue and try to be rational, and not be swayed by any political party's position. I am also neutral about religion. I believe it is a personal choice and as such should not be part of the agenda for government.

I teach a process in my courses of how to analyze controversial topics. I believe you must understand and be able to describe all sides of an issue before taking a position. I also believe in describing all sides, one needs to separate facts from assumptions. Too many of our controversial issues are focused on opinions and/or assumptions and not on facts. This is what I try to teach my students.

I like to ask questions and like to play the "critical friend" role to assist in getting all the information out on the table.

Now that is my opinion of myself, one should talk to people who know me and see if coincides with my personal perspective.

Please describe your appreciation for the City of Austin's diverse demographics and geography.

I was born and raised in Salt Lake City, Utah, as a Catholic. So I do to a small degree understand the pressures that minority groups must contend with. I also have seen the obvious discrimination of African Americans from the 40's through the 80's. I have done a number of things to address inequities in the form of employment and education discrimination, by assisting the start-up of the Science Academy of Austin, a past Board Member of the Texas Association for Minorities in Engineering (TAME) as well as acting as the Equal Opportunity Officer for IBM Austin.

I was on the first Travis County/City of Austin Job Training Partnership Act commission, whose major focus was on addressing the employment needs of the city's diverse population.

I cherish the diversity of Austin and its philosophy of nourishing it and using the various types of diversity as a strength in addressing its future.

Knowing that we do have such a vibrant diverse city, it is important we continually look for ways of involving every element of our city in its planning and governing actions.

Please provide any other information you wish to be considered during the selection of the most qualified applicants for the Commission.

In 1997 I started up a small publishing company with a partner, in which I wrote a book called the Personal Advisor, that is currently being sold in over 5 states. My partner is now sole owner. I understand business from both the large and small perspective.

I was a Republican precinct chairman for about 5 years with the intent to manage the election process. I then choose not to pursue the position due to my moderate ideology because chairman had to be actively involved in promote the Republican agenda.

I have a perspective of Austin of what has occurred since 1980 to present, and since hindsight is much better than foresight, I know what did work and what did not, and hopefully have learned some things that can be of benefit to the redistricting commission.

I look at things strategically, and try to understand all the consequences, intended and unintended, to ensure over time plans and actions will be positive and not become a burden.

DISCLAIMER

GLOSSARY

- “Bundle” means to raise money as an intermediary for a council candidate by soliciting contributions on the candidate’s behalf.
- “Campaign committee” in regard to an “officer, employee or paid consultant of a campaign committee” means a candidate or a specific purpose political committee supporting or opposing a candidate.
- “Candidate” for elective office means a person whose name appeared on a ballot, or who was a declared write-in candidate, in a general or primary election. It does not mean a person who merely announced a candidacy or only filed campaign finance filings. This definition attempts to construe the term against ineligibility, avoid ambiguity and disputes of fact, and use the term in the way most commonly understood by a lay person.
- “City” means Austin.
- “City elective office” means the office of mayor and city council member.
- “City employee” means an employee on the City payroll, including a temporary or part-time employee. The term does not include an independent contractor. This definition follows the definition in Section 2-7-2 of the City Code.
- “City office,” with respect to appointment, means a municipal court judgeship (including a substitute judgeship), and membership on a commission, committee, board, task force, or other City body appointed by the mayor or the city council. This definition follows the definition of “city official” in Section 2-7-2 of the City Code, excluding those City officials who are covered separately as City employees.
- “Community college or university in the City of Austin” means a degree-granting post-secondary educational institution, accredited by a recognized accrediting agency under the Education Code, that grants one or more of the following: an associate’s degree, a bachelor’s degree, a master’s degree, or a doctorate, and that regularly conducts classes where the instructor and two or more students are physically present in a physical location within Austin’s city limits.
- “Contribution,” for purposes of calculating aggregate contributions to candidates for City elective office, includes all contributions to candidates for mayor and city council, and contributions to specific purpose political committees supporting or opposing those candidates.
- “County” refers to a county in which the City of Austin has territory.
- “County elective office” means an office that is voted on county-wide or an office that is voted on by the voters of a precinct drawn by a commissioners court.
- “Employee” with respect to a political party or campaign committee means a person who was paid a salary by the political party or campaign committee.
- “Local lobbyist” means a person required to register under Chapter 4-8 of the City Code.
- “Non-competitively bid contract” means a contract which must be awarded as provided in Section 252.043 of the Local Government Code (“lowest responsible bidder” or “best value for the municipality”).

- “Officer” with respect to the “campaign committee of a candidate for elective state, county or city office” means:
 - the campaign treasurer of a candidate for an elective state, county, or city office;
 - the campaign treasurer of a specific purpose political committee that supported or opposed a candidate for an elective state, county, or city office; or
 - an officer or director of an incorporated specific purpose political committee, incorporated for liability purposes only under Section 253.092 of the Texas Election Code, that supported or opposed a candidate for an elective state, county, or city office.
- “Officer” with respect to a political party means a precinct chair, a county chair, or a member of a party executive committee under Title 10 of the Texas Election Code.
- “Paid Consultant” with respect to work done for a political party or campaign committee means a person who was paid monetary consideration for providing legal services, accounting services, public relations services, statistical or polling services, or political or campaign-related services or advice.
- “Paid Consultant” with respect to the three year ban on paid consultancy with a council member, means having a “political or professional contract” with a council member as defined in this guidance.
- “Political or professional contract,” in the context of a contract with a council member, means a contract with a council member under which, in return for consideration, a person provided expert advice or personal services related to a council member's duties or to the council member's service as a council member, or provided advice about the conduct of campaign activities or holding office, or provided services to a council member that would be reportable on the council member's required campaign and officeholder filings under Title 15 of the Texas Election Code; Article III, §8 of the Austin City Charter; or Chapter 2-2 of the Austin City Code. This does not include a contract solely for the sale of goods.
- “Political party” means a political party that appeared on the ballot in any of the last three general elections for state and county officers.
- “Professional contract,” in the context of a contract with the City means a non-competitively bid contract other than a contract solely for the sale of goods.
- “State” means Texas.
- “State office” means an office held by a “state officer” as defined in Section 572.002 of the Government Code.
 - In the context of an appointment to a state office, “state office” means: the office of Secretary of State, an office of a state agency subject to appointment for a term of office specified by the Texas Constitution or a statute of this state; an office subject to appointment with the advice and consent of the senate; the position of executive head of a state agency; or a state office subject to election but filled by appointment because of a vacancy or because the office is newly created.
 - In the context of candidacy or election to a state office, “state office” means a seat in the legislature, an executive or judicial office filled in a statewide election; a judgeship of a court of appeals or of a district court; membership on the State Board of Education; or the position of district attorney or criminal district attorney.
- “Student” means a person actively enrolled in a community college or university on the date of the person’s application to the Commission.
